Jo's Notebook

In the event any of you have missed me around town for the past several days, I want you to know that I've been in Louisville and Frankfort lending what assistance I could to the Democratic campaign efforts in Kentucky.

I knew when I left here Sunday, a week ago, that the outlook for a big Democratic victory in Kentucky this Fall was something less than bright, and that it is a time, truly, for all good Democrats to come to the aid of the party.

Since the election on November 5 seems to be commanding more than the usual attention, you are perhaps aware that the picture is changing each day, with the polls indicating that Katherine Peden is ahead of her Republican opponent Marlow Cook and that Hubert Humphrey is gaining ground gradually on his two opponents, Republican Richard Nixon and Independent Party candidate George Wallace.

As a matter of fact, the situation is changing so remarkably that the pollsters are hedging more and more on a definite outcome.

About the time The News goes to press this week I will be winding up a strenuous First District tour with some of the Democratic party's loveliest ladies. Take it from me, they are great campaigners and worthy of your loyal Democratic vote in the election next Tuesday.

By now you know that this game of politics is something of a hobby with me; a hobby that has afforded me the pleasure of meeting some of the finest and most interesting people in the world.

Last week in Louisville it was my privilege to be with young Bob Humphrey and his lovely wife, Donna, for some hard efforts on the campaign trail. Bob is the 24-year old son of Vice-President and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey. His wife is a vivacious and energetic young woman, who is highly intelligent and sincere in the dedication to her husband, her children and certainly to her in-laws.

Bob himself is the kind of a man-next-door type of guy, without a pretentious bone in his body. When I asked him how he felt about his father's political life and what would happen to all of them if Humphrey were elected, he quickly replied: "It won't mean a thing as far as my future is concerned. I've got to earn a living for my wife and kids just as I am doing now. Dad (the Vice-President) isn't the kind of a person who intends to let his political career interfere with the plans he laid out for us in the very beginning."

Now that may sound like a heroic kind of remark coming from somebody else but after you talk with this young couple you'll understand and love them just as I did on a moment's notice.

The most long-lasting wonderful experience I have had in political life came this week when it was my pleasure to travel the campaign trail with Mrs. Endicott Peabody, wife of the former governor of Massachusetts and until recently the head of the Office of Emergency Planning in the White House.

As if meeting ONE fun and interesting person on a mission, there comes along with Mrs. Peabody, C'Allen Chauvin, one of the youngest, most talented and hardest working political enthusiasts I've ever seen. Both of them will be my life-long friends. I look forward to working with them again sometime. Toni, as she is affectionately known by everybody who meets her, out-does me in energy and dedication to the Democratic Party if that is possible. She's the kind of a person that you instinctively call "a good gal," and proved it every mile of the campaign trail.

It is a mystery to me why anybody with everything she needs, money, family, and social status should get into a hard fought campaign like this one, but she says that whatever is worth having is certainly worth fighting for. That's for sure.

More and more I am shocked at some of our officeholders in this and adjoining counties for playing hide and seek with their support of the Democratic Party this year, simply because they do not want to alienate voters for their respective campaigns next year.

In the first place, if the Democratic party fails to survive the legal requirements for Kentucky statutes this year, all of them will have to seek election by petition next year. Moreover, by the time election time rolls around next year the Democratic Party, state-wide and at every level, will be re-organized and re-vitalized and intense efforts made to rid the party of the people who go along with the popular tide of this moment.

Frankly, I think most folks who are deserting the Democratic party for candidates who seem to be mesmerizing them at the moment are doing so without doing some serious thinking.

By all standards of arithmetics Wallace simply

Folkswagon Tour Finds First District Swing To Democrats; Peden Ahead

by Jo Westpheling

There's victory in the brisk Autumn air as this group of ladies leaves Fulton on the second day of their Folkswagon tour of West Kentucky this week. Standing are Mrs. Odessa Stubblefield, wife of Congressman Frank Albert Stubblefield and Mrs. Edward T. Breathitt. Waving the victory signs are Mrs. C'Allen Chauvin and Mrs. Endicott Peabody—Photo by Elmer Stewart

An intensive tour through the heart of the Jackson Purchase this week produced some surprising political trends for this reporter travelling in a caravan of women Democratic leaders, into every county seat in a seven-county area.

The Democratic "Folkswagon", containing the wives of two former governors, the wife of a Congressman, a Democratic state campaign chairwoman and in various areas the wives of State Senators and State representatives revealed that the First District's Gibraltar of Democracy is a long way from being submerged by the greatly diminishing tide of supporters of George C. Wallace for President.

Starting out in McCracken County on Monday and travelling clock-wise through Marshall, Graves, Fulton, Hickman, Carlisle and Ballard counties the hard-working campaign group was well received everywhere, with wide press coverage everywhere except in Hickman County, where Erl Sensing kept the "Folkswagon" party waiting for almost an hour, without ever showing up.

In spite of the fact that the reception in Hickman County was the largest and most enthusiastic along the way, with every county official on hand to show the visitors their party loyalty, the Hickman County Gazette, edited by Sensing and owned by former Lt.-Governor Harry Lee Waterfield chose not to consider the visit of the Democratic ladies as newsworthy.

Robert M. Hardy, Waterfield's son-in-law is state campaign chairman for the Democratic campaign this Fall. Hardy is married to the former Rose Gayle Waterfield, a vivacious and hard worker in the campaign organization. Mrs. Hardy, who was all prepared to make the "Folkswagon" tour with the ladies, had to cancel her plans at the last minute when word was received that Mrs. Muriel Humphrey, wife of the presidential candidate would arrive in Lexington on Monday. Mr. Humphrey's two sisters, Mrs. Vern Baines and Mrs. Frances Baker were in West Kentucky on Monday.

But be that as it may, the news from party leaders everywhere was the same; the outlook for victory for the Democratic party in Kentucky has become much brighter within the past ten days, with some public officials even predicting a comfortable majority in their respective counties.

The Democratic party's senatorial candidate Katherine Peden appears to be running well ahead of her party in every county. In Bardwell, Kentucky, John L. Beardsley, an avid supporter and campaign chairman for Wallace for President, said that all of his workers are being instructed to push for the front-running Democratic candidate for the Senate. Support for Richard M. Nixon was scarcely visible in the areas visited, except in Benton, Ky., where campaign literature for the Republican nominee was being distributed in the down-town areas. Activity for Marlow Cook, Miss Peden's Republican opponent, appeared to be non-existent.

Campaign leaders in all the counties visited, encouraged by the national up-surge in the polls for Hubert Humphrey, were working feverishly to bring dissident Democrats into the campaign apparatus, and appeared to be meeting with a great deal of success.

At a huge reception held in Mayfield Monday night, the "Folkswagon" travellers joined the two Humphrey ladies, Wayne Freeman, long-time political leader of Graves County and Mrs. Josephine Poyner a dynamic political and civic leader of Mayfield said the two-hour affair brought out heretofore apathetic Democratic workers for a concerted effort to keep Graves County and the First District in the Democratic strong-hold.

Oddly enough, political observers have viewed Fulton County as the strongest area for Wallace support in the entire State.

This reporter found this true only in spots. At press time on Wednesday she was still unable to verify the growing rumor that J. T. (Turney) Davis, chairman of the Democratic county executive committee was among the Wallace leaders in the county. An unimpeachable source, who asked not to be identified, said that Davis was organizing the First District Wallace for President caravan to be held this week-end.

Katherine Peden, winding up her vigorous campaign for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket will swoop down at the Fulton airport about noon on Saturday.

Taking the air to give a last minute message to her many supporters in the Fulton area, Miss Peden will be met by local campaign leaders.

A special invitation is being extended to all of the members of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs and their families to be on hand at the airport to give the candidate good wishes for her victory on Tuesday.

For transportation to the airport call Dr. Ward Bushart, and Mrs. Paul Westpheling in Fulton and Elbert Burcham and Fred Stokes, Jr. in Hickman.

South Fulton, Union City Vie For Bowl Title

South Fulton will oppose Union City in the Obion River Junior High Football Conference bowl game set for Thursday night at 7:30 on the Union City field, but it took the loop's first sudden-death overtime period to get the Junior Devils there.

Both South Fulton and Ridgely wound up the regular season with 4-2 records and Monday night the two teams met on the UC field to play off the tie to decide the divisional winner.

South Fulton scored in the first period when Bobby Taylor intercepted a pass and went 35 yards for the score.

In the second period, Ridgely

Ambulance Services Here Being Discontinued By Funeral Homes

At a meeting of the Fulton City Commission Monday night, representatives of Fulton's two Funeral Homes, Hornbeak and Whitnel advised the Mayor and Commissioners that their present ambulance services would be discontinued on December first.

The cities of Fulton and South Fulton have been asked to take over this service with each community offered one of the two fully-equipped ambulances now being operated by the respective firms. The vehicles are being offered on a donation basis.

Recent regulations requiring funeral homes to come under the minimum wage and hour law have forced an end to ambulance service in a number of communities where ambulances are operated by funeral homes. In addition to the wage and hour regulations, Medicare, which pays 80% of the ambulance cost for its patients, requires two attendants on any ambulance all paid for under the program.

The added burden of increased personnel and payment of the minimum wage on a 24-hour daily basis has made ambulance service financially impossible for private concerns, the funeral directors pointed out.

It was their suggestion that if the cities owned the ambulances, they could be manned through the fire and police departments for use in emergencies.

It was noted by members of the Commission that problems of storage, maintenance, and insurance would have to be met, in addition

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Westpheling
Fulton County News

Dear Friends:

This letter is being written for one purpose and with true facts. First, through you and your paper, I wish to remind the generous people of South Fulton, and this area that it will soon be time for each and every voter to vote for the candidate of their choice in the Presidential Election.

I very strongly feel that only one candidate running for President would help the citizens of South Fulton, and this area. My vote will be cast, thinking of the future of South Fulton, for the Democratic Party and Hubert H. Humphrey.

In 1939 the citizens of South Fulton, needed a water system, "Who came to their aid?" The Democratic Party and President Roosevelt. Thousands of dollars was given to the citizens of South Fulton, to lay the water lines, that the majority of you are drinking water from today.

In 1962 the citizens of South Fulton, had to build a new, modern sewage treatment plant, "Who

Historical Marker Honors Relative Of Families In Two-County Area

An historical marker was unveiled Sunday, October 20, near the Level Woods United Methodist Church in Larue County, Kentucky, on Highway 210 at 462. It commemorates the beginning of Methodism in that area.

After traveling in Maryland for several years as a Circuit Rider and his health broken by the strain, the Reverend John Baird and his wife, the former Elizabeth Aydelott, came to Kentucky in 1795 and settled in Nelson (now Larue) County. On August 7, 1796, he preached a sermon in the home of Esquire Phillip Reed, his brother-in-law, which was the first step toward the organization, 172 years ago, of Level Woods Methodist Church, the oldest Methodist Church of which Bishop Roy H. Short is the resident Bishop.

This pioneer Methodism marker was unveiled by two seventh-generation descendants of Rev. Baird, Robert E. Baird and James Edwin Scott, II, of Hodgenville. Dr. Robert H. Wade, Superintendent of the Louisville East District of the United Methodist Church, was the speaker.

Rev. John W. Lewis, president of the Louisville Conference Historical Society, gave the history of Level Woods Church. Rev. G. A. Bohannon, pastor of the church, gave the benediction. Mrs. Charlie L. Nichols, chairman of the Larue County Highway Marker program, of Hodgenville, was in charge of the program.

Following the dedication of the marker, services were continued at the cemetery where Rev. Baird and

George Wallace's Choice Of General LeMay As Running Mate May Turn Out Political Minus

George Wallace's strategy of tapping retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay for his running mate may not turn out to be the political plus that he counted on. At first blush, the choice of LeMay would seem to beef up the chances of the American Independent party. As commander of our long-range bombers in Europe and in the Pacific, LeMay had much to do with developing the leadership and techniques that helped greatly to smash Nazi Germany and the war lords in Japan. As Air Force chief of staff, he was instrumental in building up the Strategic Air Command which helps protect America from an enemy invasion. Unquestionably, he is a man of courage who has done much for his country.

But LeMay also has a number of political defects that could seriously hurt the Wallace ticket. His views on defense, for instance, would seem to clash sharply with those of Wallace himself. While Gov. Wallace has repeatedly indicated he would refuse to use nuclear weapons in Viet Nam, Gen. LeMay has emphatically stressed that he would never rule out employing such weapons.

As in the case with Barry Goldwater in 1964, LeMay's views on nuclear weapons may get the entire Wallace ticket into trouble. In 1964, for example, Human Events found scores of Wallace followers who said they would have been for Goldwater save for his "tough" attitude toward the use of nuclear devices.

Wallace supporters who are for the Alabamian's segregationist views, further, may be less enthusiastic about LeMay, since the general is proud of his role in desegregating the Air Force. "If you remember," he informed newsmen last week, "the Air Force integrated our units—colored units that we had—before anyone else." After revealing his own role in achieving this, LeMay went on to say, "we've been living together, sleeping together, working together, fighting together, ever since and without any troubles."

There are other aspects of the LeMay selection that may boomerang against the Alabamian. LeMay, a super-star in his own right, will very likely take away much of the press play from Wallace. Thus, liberal newsmen can be expected to keep questioning LeMay about his nuclear views—not about the issues Wallace is concerned about and wants to get across to the people.

Most crucial of all, however, is LeMay's almost total lack of expertise on subjects that do not include the military. By his own account he appears manifestly ill-equipped to help solve such pressing problems like the crime wave, the deteriorating dollar, racial turmoil, etc. Thus, many voters will certainly not wish to do anything that might conceivably put Gen. LeMay a heartbeat away from the presidency. For all the above reasons, Wallace may find himself regretting the fact that he lassoed the general for his running partner.

Those close to Gen. LeMay cannot really understand why he chose to team up with Wallace, but chalk it up to naivete and ambition to get a forum for his own strongly held views on defense matters. Only two weeks before he accepted the position with Wallace, a successful conservative lawyer who has helped LeMay write a number of his speeches came away from the general convinced he had no intention of running with the Alabamian. There is also the belief by some close to LeMay that he could be persuaded to drop his candidacy if Barry Goldwater, a man for whom the general has much respect, were to tell him that his teaming up with Wallace could put Humphrey in the White House.

The LeMay selection may also prove to be confusing to Wallace supporters. Because of the delay in his being chosen, Wallace staffers are saying that LeMay's name will appear on the ballot in only one state, Kansas.

Don't Blame The Funeral Home For Ambulance Loss

It is with a substantial shock that we learn this week that after December 1st, the two Fulton Funeral Homes will no longer provide ambulance service for emergencies throughout this area.

A first thought, of course, is to condemn the Funeral Homes for abandoning this humane, worthy service in time of tragedy and distress... especially when called to highway accidents, where rapid and trained assistance often means the difference between life and death.

But a condemnation of the Funeral Homes is neither fair nor accurate. The high costs of operating this service have been unmercifully burdened by government regulations, to the point where our local Funeral Homes are simply unable to continue service.

Here is just one recent example: a medicare patient was taken to a Memphis hospital by direction of the patient's doctor, and the trip and other services came to around $212. Medicare refused to pay the bill, stating that the patient should have been delivered to the nearest hospital, despite the fact that the doctors instructed the driver to go to Memphis. Just one example of dozens more.

However humane such emergency service may be, it also must be operated as a paying business, or at least a business that pays its own way. No one can ask less than that from a private operator, (or even from a municipality, when a city operates such service.)

Like so many other types of business these days, government regulations and minimum service demands have placed such a burden on the ambulance service that it cannot continue in private hands.

We salute our Funeral Homes here for offering to give—free—their expensive, well-equipped ambulances to the cities of Fulton and South Fulton so that service can be somehow continued.

Private ambulance service is being or is soon to be abandoned in these neighboring communities: Paris, Mayfield, Bardwell, Cape Girardeau, Jackson, Paducah, Charleston and Sikeston, so ours will be no isolated instance, to be sure.

This may be a good opportunity for Fulton and South Fulton to set up a jointly-sponsored community service for emergency calls. If we can afford to continue service at all, this would seem to be a logical direction to turn.

AN ANCIENT PRAYER

Give me a good digestion, Lord
And also something to digest;
Give me a healthy body Lord,
And sense to keep it at its best.

Give me a healthy mind, good Lord,
To keep the good and pure in sight;
Which, seeing sin, is not appalled,
But finds a way to set it right.

Give me a mind that is not bound,
That does not whimper, whine or sigh.
Don't let me worry over much
About the fussy thing called I.

Give me a sense of humor, Lord;
Give me the grace to see a joke,
To get some happiness from life
And pass it on to other folk.

FULTON'S

Library Corner

By Brenda Rowlett

Under the high pressure of present-day living, how is time for reading to be found? This question is often propounded as unanswerable. Its only answer is that those who care for books will somehow, slowly, as years go by, come to know them widely and well.

KISS KISS BANG BANG, by Pauline Kael. Miss Kael is writing of the past, present, and future of movies, drawing upon an encyclopedic knowledge of movie history, and an understanding of the art and business of movie-making that have made her something of a phenomenon.

NIXON, by Earl Mazo. No political figure in memory has been more wrongly written off, generously praised and criticized, and passionately voted for or against than Richard Nixon. Congressman at 33, public figure at 35, Senator at 37, Vice-President at 43, Nixon saw the ultimate triumph slip through his fingers by less than 200,000 votes in his 1960 presidential campaign against John Kennedy.

THE CROSSING FEE, by Esther S. Warner. This is the third book about the author's experiences in Liberia. It is the story of the time she spent living with the Mano tribes and of her return twenty years later. It was her interest in native handicraft that took her into the interior to learn the Mano's method of dyeing cloth.

THE TIME OF LAUGHTER, by Corey Ford. "This is a sentimental journey back to that distant decade, the Golden Age of American Humor." The early twenties marked the peak of comic writing in this country, a flowering of satire and parody and sheer nonsense that has never been equaled before or since.

THE RINGS OF DESTINY, Olga Connolly. At the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, Australia, two young people met and fell in love—Olga Fikotova, a Czech medical student who had learned to throw the discus a little more than a year before, and Harold Connelly, a youngster from Boston whose courage and will to succeed led him to become the U. S. A.'s top hammer thrower despite the handicap of a crippled arm.

HO CHI MINH, by Jean Lacouture. Here is the first in-depth biography of the man who for the last six years has been this country's major military enemy, and who to his own country is the father of Vietnamese independence.

ELEANOR OF AQUITAINE, by Regina Pernoud. Eleanor is one of the most dazzling personalities of any age. Wife to two great kings, mother of two, she was hailed by her admiring contemporaries as "a woman beyond compare." Beautiful, rich, high-born, courageous, passionate, she is a heroine out of the medieval romances she inspired.

NO EASY VICTORIES, by John W. Gardner. At the time of John W. Gardner's resignation from the Cabinet early in 1968—a time, in his own words, of dissent and divisiveness—James Reston of the New York Times credited him with "the calmest voice and coolest mind in American public life." Though he may be calm, he is anything but complacent. He has repeatedly voiced his conviction that "we are in deep trouble as a nation."

Dear Editor Paul:

After reading the article in your October 17th edition of the Fulton County News regarding "Prospective Industry Urgently Needs Available Labor in Twin-City Market" I am wondering if the enclosed summary of registration in our 12 county "Labor Availability Survey" would be of any assistance to you and your "Industrial Prospect."

Since the October 4th "News Letter" was released, we have received by mail approximately 1,000 more survey forms completed including survey forms from eight different states and one foreign country. All of this data is now being fed into a computer and in about a couple of weeks we should have all the information broken down in detail. If you think this might be of assistance to you and the "Industrial Prospect" you know that we will be glad to share this information with you and anyone else where it might help locate a qualified industry in Western Kentucky.

From the enclosed newspaper article and also the advertisements which were released to all newspapers, radios and televisions throughout the twelve county area, you will note at no time did we

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Murphy of Memphis have announced the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Joan Murphy, to Charles T. Spellings, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Spellings of Martin, the wedding to be solemnized on November 20 in the First Methodist Church, with Rev. R. H. Wade officiating. Miss Murphy is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Tucker of Fulton and formerly lived here.

Miss Nell Kathryn King daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. King, became the bride of Robert William Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Taylor of Union City on Saturday, October 23. The ceremony was performed in Corinth, Miss., with H. D. Jobe officiating. They are presently making their home with his parents. Mr. Taylor is engaged in farming.

SILHOUETTES of folks we've met: In the severely plain office of the Henry I. Siegel Company, in a little private office off the busy bookkeeping and employment office, sits a dark-eyed, dark-haired handsome person who is one of Fulton's busiest men. He is busy not so much in the tremendous task that befalls an executive administering a factory that employs hundreds of people, but in the task of human relations. For in the Siegel Company, with its heterogeneous gathering of employees, there is a real job for an expert in psychology. That man is young Leo Greengrass, 31, whose comparatively few years have run the gauntlet of experiences in dealing with male and female eccentricities. With the expansion of the Siegel Company to one of western Kentucky's largest industries, the plant is in very capable hands, with Leo Greengrass at the machine. Inauguration Of Dr. Sparks Is Ceremony Of Academic Splendor Surrounded by the splendor of academic ceremony, Dr. Harry M. Sparks was installed, Monday, October 21, as the fifth president of Murray State University.

He took the office officially when the university's first presidential medallion, struck for the occasion, was placed around his neck by Wendell Butler, state superintendent of public instruction and chairman of the board of regents, early in the colorful afternoon program in the university auditorium.

It was a day of firsts at Murray State. Besides the medallion, other firsts included the introduction of the first university flag and the first mace, presentation of the first honorary degrees in the school's 45-year history and the first performance of a composition dedicated to Dr. and Mrs. Sparks by Paul Shahan, associate professor of music at MSU.

A crowd of about 2,300 people assembled for the inaugural proceedings. It included 26 college and university presidents and representatives from 192 colleges, universities, learned societies and professional organizations, all attired in academic regalia.

Dr. Sparks' predecessor, Dr. Ralph H. Woods was given the first honorary degree, a doctorate of laws, for his outstanding service to Murray State. He retired last January after almost 23 years as president.

A second honorary degree was presented to Kentucky author and poet Jesse Stuart. Stuart, whose works from original manuscripts to finished publications are housed in a suite in the university library, was given a doctor of pedagogy degree.

Former state superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Sparks headed the department of education at Murray State for 14 years prior to his election to public office. In his response, he said emphasis during his administration at Murray State would be given to "effective learning experiences" for students.

"The expansion of the horizons of choice in America is leading us to develop the largest and most complex system of education ever conceived by the minds of men. However, in our zeal for the system there is great possibility of an administrator neglecting the students being taught and the professors doing the teaching.

"In recognition of this danger, I view the presidency of this university as a means of facilitating the opportunity for effective learning experiences on this campus," he added.

Speaking to a luncheon audience of about 600 guests, Dr. Adron

Doran, a Murray State alumnus and president of Morehead State University, proposed that the community college system in Kentucky be reorganized to affiliate the 15 two-year colleges with the regional universities—Murray State, Morehead State, Western Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky—instead of the University of Kentucky.

He said the community colleges should be administered by the regional universities "rather than to be operated as colonies of a far flung educational empire administered from far away Lexington so that the University of Kentucky could devote its full resources to professional and graduate studies and to programs and services that are of state-wide nature."

Dr. Frank G. Dickey, former University of Kentucky president and presently executive director of the National Commission on Accrediting in Washington, delivered the principal inaugural address after a series of salutations by representatives of several university, civic and governmental agencies.

He said a university president in furnishing academic leadership should not tell the faculty what to teach or how to teach.

"Quite the contrary, one of the prime functions of the academic leader is to defend his teachers against any instruction on their freedom to teach, to think, to write and to research," he declared.

He urged supporters of Murray State to rally behind Sparks and "not to speak in a thousand tongues and require a thousand different postures" from him and the university.

Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford was present for the luncheon and the inaugural ceremony. He was greeted upon his arrival by a two-platoon ceremony opened. Dr. Hugh L. Oakley, dean of the School of Applied Science and Technology, led the procession and carried the mace, which was designed by the department of industrial education for the inauguration.

OFFICIAL INSTALLATION Dr. Harry M. Sparks (right) is officially installed as the fifth president of Murray State University during ceremonies Oct. 21. Placing the presidential medallion around his neck is Wendell Butler, chairman of the board of regents and state superintendent of public instruction. The silver medallion, an inaugural first, measures about three inches in diameter and bears the university seal.

6,700 New Phone Directories Now Being Delivered; Up 300 Over 1967

Beginning this week, some 6,775 new South Central Bell telephone directories will be mailed to customers in the Fulton, South Fulton, Hickman, Cayce, Dukedom, and Water Valley exchanges. The announcement was made today by Ron Laird, local manager for the telephone company, who reported that the total number of new directories to be mailed is up about 300 over last year.

The new telephone books contain some changes which, according to Laird, should make all aspects of telephoning easier and simpler for all South Central customers. One immediately noticeable change is the name - South Central Bell. Another new addition is the introduction of the Call Guide. Located in the very front of the directory, Call

Guide is designed to give information about all phases of telephoning including local calling, long distance, how to reach repair service and Directory Assistance, and other important telephonic facts. "I want to encourage all telephone users to take advantage of the information contained in the Call Guide," said Laird. "It should answer any questions related to telephone usage."

Another important addition to the new directory is the new Fulton-South Fulton Civic Page. Using information supplied by the Chamber of Commerce, the telephone Company compiled facts about the Twin cities and printed them on the last white page in the book as a service to the community.

WHITNEL FUNERAL HOME

How much should a funeral cost?

A funeral service should not cost more than a family can afford to pay. The cost should not be a financial burden on the survivors.

We accept the responsibility of providing funeral services in a wide range of prices that every family can afford.

We can guarantee that our prices are more reasonable than any other funeral home in the city of Fulton, Kentucky.

Our metal caskets and services begin at $495, other caskets are even lower in price.

Our funeral home facilities are adequate to take care of your needs without having to charge higher prices to pay for elaborate and expensive improvements.

Our friends know that you can depend upon our reputation for dealing fairly with all families that we have served. We appreciate the confidence of our friends who have known us for a long time. These friends are aware of the dignity, sympathy and integrity of a Whitnel Service.

Fishing, LTD Planned For Kenlake Park

The annual Fishing Unlimited program at Kenlake State Park, Hardin, Kentucky, will be held the first three days of November, starting Friday afternoon and ending with mid-day dinner on Sunday.

Special rates are in effect. The bargain weekend costs $25 per person and includes six meals (specially prepared for fishermen) and two nights of deluxe lodging.

Gold trophies will be awarded for the largest catch in five classes: largemouth bass; smallmouth bass; string of bass; crappie; and string of crappie. The Governor's Cup will go to the fisherman who lands the biggest largemouth bass.

Daily fishing clinics will be held by visiting professionals.

Reservations may be made by telephoning the Kentucky Reservation Office, Frankfort (502) 223-2326, or Kenlake State Park, (502) 474-2211.

Chief Paduke Club Plans Flea Market

The Chief Paduke Collectors Club will sponsor a Flea Market Sunday, Nov. 3rd at the Jay Cee Civic Center, 28th and Park Ave., Paducah, Kentucky. The event will be open to the public and will last all day. There will be plenty of free parking. Admission will be by donation with one half to be given to the Telethon.

There will be over 50 dealers at the show selling, buying and displaying antiques, coins, guns, stamps, Jim Beam Bottles and many other collectable items. If your hobby is collecting, come on out. There will be something of interest to everyone.

More than 80,000 farmers and other landowners are cooperators in the 121 Soil and Water Conservation Districts of Kentucky. Conservation plans for their land have been developed by 53,081 of these farmers for 6.7 million acres of land.

Charles E. Wright (left) receives a pin in recognition of 20 years service and Clint Workman (right) a certificate for 15 years service as Supervisors of Fulton County's Soil & Water Conservation District. Making the presentation in behalf of the State Commission is Farrel Miller, fieldman with Ky. Division of Soil and Water Conservation. Wright who lives on Route 1, Fulton was a pioneer in establishing the District and has served in the capacity of Chairman since organization. Workman has served as Vice-Chairman and his farm in the Cayce Community is a living example of outstanding Conservation. Other Supervisors of the District are Charles A. Everett, Route 4, Hickman, Cecil Barnett, Route 2, Hickman, and Roy M. Taylor, Route 1, Crutchfield, Ky.

Cannon's Farm Enrolled With Angus Group

Cannon's Greenlea Farm, registered Angus cattle breeders from near South Fulton, Tennessee, have enrolled their herd in the American Angus Association's beef improvement program. The herd is scheduled to be classified in November by an official representative of the American Angus Association.

The program, called Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR), is designed to help cattlemen do a more professional job of breeding by measuring and recording the type, production and carcass producing qualities of their herd. All AHIR records are kept by the American Angus Association on a Honeywell 400 computer. These records are sent regularly on special forms to each Angus breeder enrolled in the AHIR program.

The official classifier will compare every animal in the herd against the ideal type Angus. Each integral part will be analyzed and a total score ranging down from an ideal of 100 points will be assigned each heifer, cow and bull over one year of age.

When the classification is complete the American Angus Association's breed improvement department will compile a graph showing how the herd averaged on each part, such as feet and legs, head and neck, rump, loin, etc. A graph of each bull will also be made up on a transparent sheet of acetate. By placing the bull graph on top of the herd graph a breeder can quickly determine if their herd bulls can be expected to sire calves that are better on all points than the average of the herd.

100,000 ACRES OF SOYBEANS

The shock of lower yields of soybeans is being heard now as combines begin to move into full speed of the harvesting of over 100,000 acres of soybeans in Obion County. During the last week we have heard about the lower yields in almost every area of Obion County. The yield reduction per acre seems as if it will affect the earlier maturing varieties more than the late maturing varieties.

The reduction in yield per acre plus the lower prices is hurting farmers. A few are already thinking about how they may swing away from such heavy acreage of soybeans. Some are thinking about sowing down some of their poorer ground which should never have been taken out of pasture and hay and going back in the cattle and hog business. We think this is a step in the right direction as the farmer affected will be more full time employed which should balance his income more throughout the year.

ORDER TREE SEEDLINGS NOW

A large number of Obion County farmers have some land that is not adapted or suitable for crops or pastures which is not bringing in any returns each year and should be planted in trees. This is the time of the year when farmers should order tree seedlings for winter delivery. Tree seedlings may be ordered at the Soil Conservation or the County Agents Office and they will be delivered by the Tennessee Forestry Service to any place specified on order application.

Loblolly Pine, Black Locust, White Oak, Cherrybark Oak, Sycamore, Shortleaf Pine, and Catalpa may be ordered at $4.00 per thousand, white pine at $6.00 per thousand, Cottonwood cuttings at $7.00 per thousand, and Yellow poplar at 1c each. Stratified Black Walnut Nut may be purchased at 200 for $2.00, 1,450 for $3.00 or 1,000 for $4.00. A lot of the hill land that covers the Western section of Obion County is ideal for Yellow Poplar and Black Walnut. When ordering the trees you can specify that the trees be delivered either in November, December, January, February or March.

FARM DATES TO REMEMBER

November 6 - Lamb Pool - Jackson.
November 7 - Annual Meeting - Obion County Fair Association.
November 9 - Polled Hereford Sale - Dresden.
November 21 - Feeder Pig Sale - Dresden.

AUSTIN SPRINGS

By Mrs. Carey Frieleds

Rev. Bobby Copeland filled his appointment at New Salem Baptist Church the past Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday School was at 10 a. m. Many attended the ordination service of Bro. Copeland, which was held Sunday afternoon in Davis Memorial Church, from whence the popular young minister came. New Salem Church was his first call as pastor and he entered upon his duties here two weeks ago.

Mrs. Inez Vincent of Pilot Oak is here on a visit with her sister, Mrs. Grover True, and Mr. True. She is enjoying her visit very much.

Mrs. Bulton Lassiter is recovering from a siege of influenza, after having been indisposed for several days.

Charlie Vincent is reported some better, in a Mayfield hospital, where he has been under treatment and observation. All friends of this village, his home, will be glad to know.

Carl Westbrook is about the same at his home near here. Mr. Westbrook has spent some time in a TB sanitarium in Memphis.

David Earl Copeland of Chicago underwent surgery in a local hospital last week and reports from his bedside that he is making satisfactory recovery, according to his surgeon's statement. Everyone wishes this fine young man a quick recovery. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Copeland.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Frieleds and son, Kerry, accompanied by friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Davis, of Tullahoma, Tenn., recently spent vacation in Destin, Fort Walton Beach, Fla., where they got in some deep sea fishing. All report a nice vacation down on the gulf.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deak and son of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Irene King of Mayfield were dinner guests of Miss Margaret Bynum last Tuesday night. Mrs. Deak and Mrs. King are Lorene and Irene, twin daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bynum, and were former residents of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Brown and son, David, of Tullahoma, Tenn., spent the past week end with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brown and Mrs. Aleful McClain of Dukedom. They returned home Sunday. W. D. is employed at ARO's in Tullahoma, where he resumes his duties on Monday. Their visits home are always welcomed by relatives and friends.

BEAUTIFUL IRELAND

DUBLIN, Ireland: The hillsides between Waterford and Dublin have been painted with reds and yellows and oranges as autumn has come to the Emerald Isle, but the meadows remain vividly green, as they will during the winter months, too, since the Irish climate is mild and snow is rare, indeed.

Fall is a good time to visit Ireland, for tourists are not as numerous, hotels are less crowded, and the rural roads are a delight.

PILOT OAK Mrs. O. F. Taylor

We had two big frosts last week, but we are still enjoying the sunshine, even though it is cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Donnie House, of Detroit, spent one night last week with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. House, and Mrs. Ruth Weems, of Dukedom, Route 2. They also visited Mrs. House's brother, William Roberts.

Some of the visitors Mrs. Ira Raines had last week were: Mrs. Rose Brann and her two daughters, Mrs. John Fuqua and Mrs. Manley Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carr, Mrs. Lela Bushart, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Gilliam of Mayfield, Mrs. Totsie Gilliam and Misses Ollie and Effie Russell.

Mrs. O. F. Taylor had as Wednesday guests, her nephew, Brother Adams of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Ben Holland of Fulton.

Mrs. Ruby Moody and Mrs. Lexie Floyd were Friday afternoon guests of Mrs. Maggie Pankey.

Edwin Carr will soon have his home completed in Pilot Oak and hopes to get moved before the weather gets bad.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Yates of Water Valley called on Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Lowry Friday.

"Bubba" Taylor, who was hurt the first of last week in Cuba, when he fell from the top of a building, remains in a critical condition in a Memphis hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Vodie Floyd were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. House.

Mrs. Ruth Weems had Sunday dinner with Mrs. Verdine Dallas, and Brother and Mrs. Billy Clark were also guests.

Carlisle Cruse is a patient in the Baptist Hospital in Memphis. He had surgery a few days ago. Hope he gets better soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Yates of Water Valley and Mr. and Mrs. Bernal Lowry of Pilot Oak visited Mr. and Mrs. Owen Stewart in Barlow recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Blackburn of Gleason were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John Yates.

Mrs. Ammie Seay of near Water Valley spent one day last week with her sister, Mrs. Pankey.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Lowry visited their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lowry, Keith, Kris and Susie, of Memphis, over the week end.

Kentucky has 121 Soil and Water Conservation Districts covering all the farmland in the states.

Engagement of Beverlyn Taylor To Larry LeCornu Is Announced Today

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Taylor of Route 2, Water Valley, are today announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their oldest daughter, Miss Beverlyn Louise Taylor, to Mr. Larry Neal LeCornu, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. LeCornu, 118 Morris Street, South Fulton, Tennessee.

Mr. LeCornu formerly attended South Fulton High School and is now employed at Wade's Furniture Company in Fulton.

The bride-elect is presently a senior attending Wingo High School.

Miss Taylor is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Richard of Dublin, Kentucky, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Boone Taylor, Route 1, Wingo.

Mr. LeCornu is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willie Sizemore and the late Mr. and Mrs. Earn LeCornu, all of Route 2, South Fulton.

A December wedding is being planned.

Miss Beverlyn Louise Taylor

Well, If You Have Broomcorn You Can Make Yo'self A Broom

Carmey Chaney and his wife Maggie live in a two-story white frame house alongside US 460 at Grassy Creek (Morgan County), Kentucky. When you stop to ask if they will make you a broom Chaney will ask if you have your broomcorn! If you haven't, the Chaney's, who are among the last of the old-time broommakers, will gift you with some broomcorn seed before you leave.

In a small shed near the Chaney home, you can watch as the couple goes through the process of making a broom "that will last longer than store-bought ones" from a sheaf of broomstraws (broomcorn).

Chaney, whose forebears came to Morgan County from Pike County, obtained his broommaking equipment from a Negro who brought the three pieces to Adele, a Morgan County whistle-stop, in the days of the Ohio and Kentucky Railroad. The equipment is handmade and is thought to be over a hundred years old.

Carmey Chaney the broommaker, is 79, and his wife Margaret is 76.

She is a descendant of Revolutionary soldier Joseph Carter who is buried in Goodwin Chapel cemetery at Mize.

Working as a team in making a broom, they place a handful of broomcorn and a handle in a machine with a treadle, and as a foot turns the treadle slowly, a hand guides wire, so the corn and handle are wired together.

The broom then is clamped in a stitcher where the "ties" are sewed on the broom by hand. A "three-tie" broom means there are three rows of stitching. The broom then is placed in a cutter where a sharp blade trims the sweeping ends.

A broom is not made in a few minutes, but is painstaking work of coordinating feet and hands and machines.

This broommaking business produces not the fancy sweepers, the doll-size hearthside brooms or the souvenir kind, but strong, sturdy brooms of Morgan-grown broomcorn, put together by hand on century-old equipment at a cost of $1.25.

Drapery Class To Be Taught In Hickman

A class in "drapery construction" will be taught Wednesday November 6th at the R. E. C. C. Building in Hickman by Mrs. Mildred Potts and Mrs. Juanita Amonett, UK extension home economist.

The class will begin at 9:00 in the morning and last until 3:00 p. m. in the afternoon. Everyone who attends will make a sample drapery, the teachers advised.

It is especially important that all those who are planning to attend this class call the local extension office as soon as possible for a list of supplies to bring. The number is 236-2351 in Hickman.

Toni Peabody Is Democratic Fireball, And Saleslady, Too!

Mrs. Endicott Peabody, the wife of the former Governor of Massachusetts and the originator of the Humphrey "Pharmacy" blossoming up all over the country this fall, is a dynamic personality whose enthusiasm for the Humphrey-Muskie ticket will keep her going 24 hours a day until November fifth.

The Pharmacies are actually boutiques full of chic and imaginative campaign paraphernalia, from green-and-blue dresses, scarves, Sally Victor hats, umbrellas, and shopping bags to Kenneth Lane jewelry and sunglasses. The first one, in Washington's fashionable shopping district of Georgetown, did such a landslide business that the big problem is keeping up with the re-ordering.

"I hope to open them in every city before we're through," says the indefatigable "Toni", in her husky voice. "You see, they're so much more than just boutiques in the sense of a store. They're a way for women who have something to give, but don't feel up to getting involved on an issue level, to feel actively a part of this campaign. It's important for every fan to be able to contribute."

Toni whose husband—former Harvard football star "Chubb" Peabody, brother of famed Democratic glamor girl Marietta Tree—recently resigned as Assistant Director of the Office of Emergency Planning to campaign for HHH—was born in Bermuda, where her British father has been a member of the Bermuda House of Parliament.

She met her husband during World War II, when he was stationed in Bermuda as a submarine officer on anti-submarine duty in the Atlantic. She has three children, two now in college, but has been deeply involved in politics ever since her husband, a "Boston Brahmin", first ran for the Massachusetts Governor's Council. Her other primary interest has been mental health, in which she has been deeply involved both as a private citizen and as a Governor's wife.

Toni learned to sew at the Catholic convent she attended for many years in Bermuda, and without this expertise, she could never have invented the delightful costumes worn by the HHH volunteers at the Chicago convention and sold out practically the first day at the "Pharmacy" in the HHH hospital room at the Conrad Hilton.

"Only one thing matters now," she says, "To get our message across about what a great man Hubert is."

Susanne Ziegler Of Louisville To Marry Phillip Wade Jeffress

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Miller of Louisville, Kentucky, announce the engagement of their niece, Miss Susanne Ziegler, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas Ziegler, to Mr. Phillip Wade Jeffress, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Jeffress of Fulton, Kentucky.

Miss Ziegler received her Bachelor's degree from the University of Kentucky, where she was a member and past president of Kappa Delta Sorority, and was also a member of the Mortar Board, Links, Cwens, Alpha Lambda Delta and Kappa Delta Pi honorary societies.

Mr. Jeffress received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Union University in Jackson, Tennessee, in 1963, where he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity. He received his Master's degree from the University of Kentucky and is presently a candidate for his PhD. At the University of Kentucky he is a member of Omicron Delta Epsilon economics honorary fraternity and is currently assistant professor of economics at Western Kentucky University.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, December 28, 1968, in the Cedar Creek Baptist Church in Louisville, Kentucky.

There is no one side to fashions for this fall. This season's fashions are built around multiplicity, so milady will have no trouble in selecting fashions to express her individuality. She will be able to dress to suit her mood, the time of day, her way of life, or for her face or figure flattery. There are many different ways to project a feeling, many different ways to look.

The silhouette for fall is moving in. It is a season of curves, as fashion becomes feminine, soft, supple and comfortable. The new shape, which was actually started a year ago as belts began to return, is small at the top, narrowing in at the waist, and widening at the bottom.

There are no drastic changes in skirt lengths, which is good news to most women. The word is still short; however, to some it is longer than last year. The most popular length is one to three inches above the knee. The "new long" is a length just below the knee. The "midi" length, which is mid-calf, is being shown in some coats and a few "high fashion" ensembles for this fall. —Mrs. Catherine Thompson

You invest in yourself when you make a conscious effort to improve your mental and physical abilities, your appearance, and your special interests and hobbies. The returns on this type of investment are more effective living, greater earning power and more personal satisfaction. — Mrs. Barletta Wrather

How can I get the bottom crust of a pie to brown? The pastry recipe and the baking temperature are important to the browning of pie crust. Pastry made by a rich formula - one that contains a large proportion of fat - browns more readily than that made by a lean formula. For good browning, the dough must be evenly mixed and the pie pan must be dry before the crust is placed in it. An oven temperature of 400 to 450 degrees F. to start baking is recommended primarily to brown the lower crust.

—Miss Patricia Everett

Mr. S. W. Kellerman, Jr., Referee in Bankruptcy District Court of Louisville, Kentucky, will be the guest speaker for the Purchase Area Homemakers Meeting, scheduled for October 10th. His topic will be "Money Management-Wise or Otherwise".

The meeting will be held at the First Christian Church located on Highway 62 or the Blandville Road. The meeting will begin at 9:30 a. m. and be completed by noon according to the Area President, Mrs. Elwood Lents of Marshall County.

Homemakers of Carlisle County will serve as hostess for the meeting. All members in the eight Purchase Counties are urged to attend. —Mrs. Maxine Griffin

TEEN LEADERS—Older 4-H'ers may serve as leaders. Adult leaders guide them as they learn their new role in 4-H. Teen leaders are important in 4-H. Some of them may enroll in the 4-H leadership project; others may not. Most important, they are given the kind of responsibilities that say to young people. "You are important. You are capable. You are becoming an adult." —Mrs. Dean Roper

DISCIPLINE—Children need discipline. We all do. They need to know that there are limits to what they can do and what they cannot do. If discipline is to be effective it must be in relation to the child's experience. What kind of discipline is best for your child? It is best to think of discipline as the many things we do to guide and control our children while they are learning to direct and control themselves. Good discipline is the skillful blending of authority with understanding and love. —Miss Irma Hamilton

Costly mistakes are made when we forget to measure before we buy furniture and accessories for our home. Do not use a cloth tape measure to take the dimensions of rooms of furniture. You never get the same measurement twice in a row. Buy a metal coil-spring tape measure and carry it with you whenever you shop for furniture. It will prove invaluable. —Mrs. Mildred W. Potts

Does your student have a study center? A large desk or table, at least 20 x 42 inches, with good lighting, 150-watt bulb, can encourage better study habits. Study centers can be built with flush, hollow-core doors by laying one end on a small filing cabinet, decorative concrete blocks, or a small chest of drawers. The other end can be attached to the wall by a bracket or have the screw-type legs attached. Two things are important: (1) enough space to spread out their bulky notebook, textbook, and reference book or dictionary plus a large lamp, and (2) a lamp with shade 15 inches from top of desk that sheds light rays over entire desk surface. If you are buying a lamp, be sure to get the "Better Light-Better Sight" desk or reading lamp. It has a diffuser bowl below the bulb as well as above the bulb and uses a 200-watt bulb. —Mrs. Juanita Amonett.

Homemakers To Study Gourmet Cookery Styles

Are you creative in the kitchen? Are you interested in being a Gourmet Cook? If so, you are invited to visit one of the approximately forty-five Homemaker Clubs in the Purchase Area whose November lesson will be on "Gourmet Cookery."

Miss Patricia Everett, Area Extension Agent in Foods and Nutrition for the University of Kentucky will be conducting training school in the area to teach the lesson to two leaders from each of the clubs. The ladies will discuss the characteristics of a gourmet meal. Information and demonstrations of cooking with wines, herbs and spices will be emphasized. Leader training will be given in this area on October 31 at the Kentucky Utility Office, Clinton. Class starts at 10: A. M.

CHESTNUT GLADE

By Mrs. Harvey Vaughn

The nippy weather this Monday morning is a definite warning that the winter days are fast approaching and that preparations should not be delayed.

The community was shocked as it is not often during the weekend, due to two tragic deaths. Mrs. Patricia Arnold died early Friday morning when she was shot by her husband. The Arnolds lived in this community until a few weeks ago, when they moved near Dresden. Especially sad are the six little children, ages from four months to ten years. Sympathy is extended to all the family. Funeral service was at the Jackson Chapel on Sunday with burial near Somerville, Tennessee. Then on Saturday morning the community was shocked at the tragic death of Curly Potts, who was injured by a falling tree while cutting timber alone near Ruthville Friday. His body was not found until Saturday morning. Funeral service and burial were at Oak Grove on Monday. Sympathy is extended to his wife; four sons, Bill, Bob, Ted and Larry; five daughters, Velma, Margie, Margarette, Nell, and Doris, and to his sister, Mrs. Irvie Nabors, and his brothers, Herman and Cecil.

Due to having not called a regular minister at the Ruthville Baptist Church, Brother Smith spoke at the morning service and Brother Lois Carlin spoke at the evening service last Sunday. Mrs. Carlin and Mrs. Pearl Newton attended the evening service.

Boyd Johns, who is a patient at the Baptist Hospital in Memphis, is reported to be unimproved.

Norman Terrell truly made a flying trip to see his parents last Sunday, when he flew to the Union City airport Sunday morning and back to Knoxville that afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Dessell Wright flew to Boston last Saturday, after being invited to meet the ship their son Steve has been serving on for the past year and much of the time has been near Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kelly spent Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. Durrell Terrell. No doubt, the Terrells are assured of a Thanksgiving Turkey, as Ray Terrell was the winner of the first turkey at the Turkey Shoot last Sunday after keen competition.

DUKEDOM NEWS

Mrs. Hulman Westbrook

Youth Week at Good Springs is being observed by using them in places of leadership in the Sunday School hour. They will also be guests at a pot-luck supper at the church Saturday, November 2, at 7 p. m. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mrs. Sue Tuck, 85 years old, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Catherine Sherron, after a prolonged illness, Saturday afternoon. Funeral and burial were Monday afternoon at two o'clock in Pisgah Church. Survivors are three sons, J. B., and Martin Carl of St. Louis and Bruce of Detroit; also three other daughters, Alberta Laws of Palmersville, Opal Otterman of St. Louis and Valda Bailey of Detroit.

Mrs. Polk Caraway of Memphis and Mrs. Ruby Durbin of Gadsden, sisters of A. C. Bell, and his brother-in-law, A. J. Selph of Alamo were visitors at the Bell home last Tuesday.

The Dukedom Homemakers met in the home of Mrs. Joe Wilds and elected officers for 1969 as follows: Elizabeth Darnell, president; Jessie McClure, vice president; Joyce Brown, secretary and reporter; Marie Wilds, treasurer. The club is planning a bazaar for November 8 and 9, proceeds to be used for the Crippled Children's Telethon. The place for the bazaar is National Store in Fulton. Hand-made articles will be offered.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie House and daughter, Darlene, returned to their home in Detroit today, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. William Roberts and other members of the family and friends.

Mrs. Larry Watkins and two daughters left last Thursday to join her husband in Freeport, Ill., where he is in training for work in Union City.

Mr. and Mrs. George Elliott and Dana visited Mrs. Lena Cashion at Mayfield Hospital yesterday, where she is a patient due to a broken hip suffered in a fall on Sunday.

Sympathy to the family of Curly Potts, who was accidentally killed Friday while cutting timber. Funeral and burial were Monday at Oak Grove.

Herbert Woodruff returned home from the hospital in Jackson last week for a two-weeks stay before going back for further examination.

Mrs. Eula Nelson has returned from her visit with family in Detroit.

Mrs. Aline Williams

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Everett Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Revel Moody and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cannon drove to Mt. Moriah Primitive Baptist Church, near Benton, for the evening service. Elder Arline Larmier is pastor at Mt. Moriah.

We wish to extend our sympathy to the family of Hamp Qualls in the death of their father and grandfather last week.

Those visiting Mrs. Eva Williams, East State Line, the past few days were Mrs. Inez Smith of Hattiesburg, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. Joe Oshea and Miss Louise Jones of Detroit.

PFC Lewis and Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Wilma Lewis visited with Mr.

and Mrs. Bill Workman last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Davis, of Memphis, drove by to visit with Mrs. Davis' sister, Mrs. Effie Croft, for a while Friday afternoon, after spending a few days sight-seeing through the Smoky and Blue Ridge Mountains. They spent Friday night with Mrs. Davis' aunt, Mrs. I. M. Jones, and Mr. Jones in Fulton, returning to their home Saturday morning.

The First Baptist Church, with dozens of flickering candles and beautifully arranged flowers, was the scene for the double ring ceremony of Miss Donna Lewis and Mr. Damon Clure at eight o'clock Friday evening. Miss Lewis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis of Harris, Tenn. We wish for this couple a long and happy life together.

We wish to extend our sympathy to the family of Curly Potts in the loss of their dad and husband. Mr. Potts was found dead in the woods on Jim Burke's farm, near Ruthville, Saturday morning. He had not returned home Friday night and someone in the family had been out to look for him, but failed to find him in the dark. He had sawed a big limb off a tree and it had fallen on him. His funeral was at Oak Grove Church of Christ Monday, with Rev. Owen officiating. Jackson Funeral Home of Dukedom had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Aubrey Taylor passed away in the Baptist Hospital at Memphis Monday, after being there for several days and being ill at her home for some time before going to the hospital. Our sympathy goes to Mr. Taylor and the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett had as their dinner guests Monday Mr. and Mrs. Ross Williams of Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Claud McNeill of near Water Valley and PFC and Mrs. Carl Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Newman Croft and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Page attended the funeral of Charlie Harris in Mayfield last week. Mr. Harris was the brother-in-law of Mrs. Page.

Neal Hedge is still in Hillview Hospital at Fulton and is some better at this writing.

PFC Carl Lewis left Memphis Wednesday for California, then he will go to Vietnam. This leaves us very sad, as I know it has so many of his relatives. Mrs. Lewis will make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Williams, while Carl is away.

We were sorry to hear Mr. Carlisle Cruse, of Pilot Oak, is back in the hospital at Memphis.

TAP May Not Be Household Word, But To Farmers Its Important

By Soil Conservation Service
What is TAP?

If one questioned 10 persons on the street it is doubtful if a single person could unscramble the alphabet enough to give a good answer. But the Technical Action Panel-TAP for short is able to provide the proper service or assistance to almost any kind of problem in rural development in Fulton County.

The TAP is an organization of federal, state, and county agency representatives and other individuals interested in developing rural areas. A regular monthly meeting is held at the Fulton County ASCS Office in Hickman. Special meetings are held if problems come up that require immediate action.

What is the potential for Fulton

County in pulpwood production for West Virginia Paper and Pulp Company? Are labor and management available for growing specialty crops? Are Fulton County's soil and topography best suited for intensive row cropping or should cattle be increased in numbers?

Answers to these and other questions are being sought individually and collectively by TAP members.

Agencies represented on the panel are: Soil Conservation Service (SCS), Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), Extension Service, Farmer Home Administration (FHA), Ky. Division of Forestry, Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), and County Judge. Working together, the agencies avoid duplication of effort and provide the technical assistance for all sorts of rural projects.

A project presently under consideration is the formation of a permanent organization to carry out a clean-up, anti-litter and beautification program for Fulton County.

Charles Martin, Soil Conservationist and Chairman of TAP reports that he found on one of the county's highways in a distance of 200 ft. 16 beer cans, an egg carton, 6 soft drinks paper cups, 2 potatoes chip bags and various other items that should be in a well managed trash dump.

Roy Bard, ASC Committee Chairman reports that through the ASCS cost sharing program financial assistance is available to those farmers wishing to stop erosion from steep road banks, by sloping and establishing a permanent cover of grass, legume, trees or shrubs.

Raymond Hogue says his agency (FHA) provides credit to implement feasible programs. Among the present clients are loans for housing, recreational projects, and rural water facilities.

John Watts, row crop specialist with Extension Service, provides an educational program and home agents Mrs. Robert Thompson and Miss Katherine Wilson carry out an extensive program in home management and youth program.

Next TAP meeting is scheduled for October 25th, a tour is planned so members may see some of the problems confronting Fulton County.

Patrick Henry said: "Give me liberty or give me death". He also said "He is the greatest patriot who stops the most gullies."

Oak Grove Patrons Asked To Meeting

There will be an important meeting of patrons of the Oak Grove Cemetery at the Oak Grove Church Sunday afternoon November 3rd at 2:30 p. m.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss perpetual care for the cemetery, and all patrons are urged to attend.

Oak Grove cemetery is located on East State Line between Fulton and Dukedom, in the 13th District of Weakley County.
